

P.P.C. Printing Facts

Julius Kayser & Co., makers of the famous "Italian" silk underwear, gloves, and hosiery, considered starting a house organ. They sent for us, explained their problem, and gave us a batch of manuscript. We photographed models, made designs, sketches, line plates, half-tone plates, and process plates, and then printed a sample copy. This was submitted to the Kayser Officials, who immediately approved, and The Kayser Magazine was born. It is only three months old, but is going strong. It is considered the most beautiful and effective house organ in the textile industry. Can we help you?

Raising Fallen Arches

The arch is not alone the key-stone of the foot but the keynote to foot comfort as well. The fallen arch means the broken-down foot with its attendant pain and lasting discomfort.

Weak or fallen arches need at once the comforting assistance of the ARCH PRESERVER "Corrective" Shoe to strengthen or raise them.

This shoe, with its invisible, built-in support, is the most effective and efficient shoe ever offered for the relief of the arch-weak foot. Three people out of five need its comfort-giving qualities.

BUILDERS' MOVE TO BE HALTED BY COURT

Fourth Attempt Fails to Keep Supply Men's Secrets From Publicity.

GRAND JURY SWORN IN

Intermyer and Aids Busy Delving Deeper Into Contractors' Corruption.

BACKER TRIAL PROCEEDS

Ramifications of Trust Busters Reach to Four Courts and City Hall Hearing.

The ramifications of the investigation into the housing situation and its attendant corruption reached yesterday into four court rooms and the City Hall, while the Lockwood committee and its counsel, completing its plans for public hearings during the next four days, extended its activities into many fields. There were three actions in the criminal courts, one in the Supreme Court and in addition the Board of Estimate launched its independent inquiry into city contracts.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury was completed and charged by Justice McAvoy. This body will take over the main part of the criminal inquiry for the present and will begin to-day receiving evidence. William T. Spiegelberg, a cotton broker, is foreman. The additional Grand Jury, which has been turning out indictments for the last month, continued receiving evidence and additional indictments are expected this week.

The Builders Supply Company lost its fourth legal fight to keep its books from the Lockwood committee. Justice Hotchkiss denied the motion made by Martin Conboy on behalf of the company to hide its records and held that the builders had no recourse to the courts. The committee is confident now that it will get a peek into the documents.

Backer's Trial Continues.

George Backer, a wealthy builder, the first man indicted as a result of the investigation, will go to trial to-day on a charge of perjury. Judge Rosinsky announced he would lock up the jury until the trial is completed.

With Comptroller Craig refusing to attend the session and H. H. Curran, president of Manhattan Borough, walking out in protest, the city officials began the search for collusion in city contracts covering plan and city consultation. This is the proceeding which Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, has criticized as a whitewash. The inquiry produced little new information. Three contractors doing work for the city testified they knew nothing about Backer, Brindell, or corruption in building. Frederick Tench of Terry & Tench testified he offered $50,000 for a $250,000 bank loan for city work but did not get the money.

Mr. Untermyer was present while the Extraordinary Grand Jury was being chosen. Then took charge in the Backer case. Later he conferred for an hour with members of the Board of Estimate regarding forms of contracts to be issued to protect the city, and following that went into conference with counsel for the committee and laid out the programme for to-day's session in City Hall.

Justice Hotchkiss's decision is believed to be the last step in the stubborn fight to keep the records of the builders' company out of Mr. Untermyer's hands. This is the organization in which John A. McCarthy, partner formerly of Charles F. Murphy, is a member if not the dominant factor.

The builders should have made their appeal to the committee and not the courts, the Justice informed Mr. Conboy. No rights of personal property had been violated and the only error was in subject to attack was possibly a defect in the subpoena, which the committee itself could remedy.

Objection is raised that the subpoena is too broad, the Justice said, and that the committee has not the right to demand production of all books and papers, including checkbooks and account books. If the subpoena were issued in a regular judicial proceeding, Justice Hotchkiss said, he would not hesitate to rule that the subpoena was too broad, but this special subpoena was issued by a committee representing the "grand inquest of the State empowered to inquire into certain matters," and the Legislature is invested with broad powers.

The jurors selected to try Backer will not be permitted to go to their homes from the time when the presentation of evidence in the cases begins to-day until their verdict is in.

Safeguarding Backer Jurors.

Announcement of extraordinary precautions to safeguard these jurors from outside influences was made by Judge Otto A. Rosinsky in General Sessions after the panel had been completed. He told the twelve jurors to carry their necessary belongings to court this morning and to be prepared to remain in the custody of the court officers for several days. He said arrangements had been made to accommodate them at a hotel.

The trial, which is the first to be heard as a direct result of the Lockwood committee's investigation, is expected by counsel for both sides to last until the end of the week. The issue involved is whether Backer willfully testified falsely when he told the committee he lost $25,000 at the race track, and subsequently said he paid the money to two men believed to have been delegates of a labor union which had called a strike on a building in which he was interested.

The selection of the jurors was embittered by verbal clashes between Mr. Untermyer and Edmund L. Moore, counsel for Backer. Mr. Untermyer, who stated he was there because of Mr. Backer's inability to be present, accused the ire of defendant's counsel by asking talesmen such questions as "Did you know that the charge of perjury strikes at the very foundations of society?"

He also disturbed Mr. Moore by saying to one juror: "Assume a man was put on the witness stand and you were told to one thing, and then, when he found he was trapped, testified to another story. How would that affect your judgment as a juror?"

Mr. Moore objected to the use of the word "trapped" and Judge Rosinsky sustained him. Five of the jurors were selected at Friday's session of the court. Those chosen to yesterday were Sidney Sachs, manager of a neckwear establishment, 86 West 119th street; William L. Howitz, manufacturer's representative, 84 East 123d street; Louis Oppenheimer, lace manufacturer, 151 West Forty-seventh street; Louis B. Stern, connected

Boy Finds $31,000 Bonds By Falling Over Package

At 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon Charles Gregory, 18 years old, a runner for W. E. Hutton & Co., brokers, of 60 Broadway, dashed out of the office and started for the subway and home. Down on the sidewalk he tripped and sprawled, and when he looked back to see what had caught his foot he saw a compact, little bundle. The markings on it were familiar and he took it to his employers.

In the Hutton office the package was found to contain $31,000 worth of easily negotiable bonds, purchased by the Bank of New York from Sparks & Co. of Philadelphia for the account of Hoge, Underhill & Co. They were returned at once.

with the Atlantic Coal Company, 75 Fort Washington avenue; Charles Windt, travelling salesman, 153 East Ninety-second street; Joseph Kelly, an employee of the Corn Exchange Bank, 213 Broadway, and Herman Epstein, commission merchant, 20 East 88th street.

The new Extraordinary Grand Jury was impaneled by Justice John V. McAvoy in the Supreme Court. The work of presenting evidence to it will be begun at 11 o'clock this morning by an array of counsel, including Mr. Untermyer, Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger, Arthur C. Train and Assistant District Attorney Albert Bloz Unger.

City Contractor Is Excused.

One of the talesmen called to serve upon the panel, but rejected after his examination by counsel, was Thomas F. Farrell, coal dealer, 30 Church street, who stated in response to questions that he was acquainted with both Mayor Hylan and Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and that he holds large contracts to supply the city government with coal for which his concern and one other were the only bidders. He said that his concern supplied the city with about 75,000 or 100,000 tons of coal per annum, 15,000 tons going to the Board of Education.

In his charge to the jury Justice McAvoy read a part of the proclamation of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, which he holds large contracts to supply the city government with coal for which his concern and one other were the only bidders. He said that his concern supplied the city with about 75,000 or 100,000 tons of coal per annum, 15,000 tons going to the Board of Education.

HYLAN GRAFT QUEST OPENS; CURRAN OUT

Contractor Tench Testifies Even $50,000 Bonus Didn't Get a $250,000 Loan.

The city's independent investigation of building graft got under way yesterday before the Board of Estimate in City Hall, with two members of the board, Comptroller Charles L. Craig and Henry H. Curran, President of Manhattan, refusing to join.

Mr. Curran excused himself when his motion to defer the inquiry until after the Lockwood committee has completed its work was voted down. He said he did not intend to bid at all. Mr. Clark testified. Mr. Carwell asked how he knew the others were acting in concert.

"Haywood, my superintendent, told me," said the witness. "I don't know how he found it out. You had better call him."

The reason he did not submit a real bid was fear of disclosing his figures to his competitors. If new bids were called for, Mr. Clark said, when only one bid is received the city ordinarily rejects it.

Mr. L. Guardia, who is associated with Mr. Curran as the Republican minority on the Board of Estimate, issued a statement in which he said: "For all reasons stated by my colleague, Mr. Curran, I deem it my duty to sit with the board at every meeting it holds."

"Mr. Curran is an excellent city official with vast experience," the statement continues. "His presence would be a great aid not only in preventing the interference which he fears, but also in bringing out facts and conditions surrounding city affairs. I hope he will resume his seat and help in the work."

get the banks to extend their credit in any way."

In reply to a question as to payments of $5,000 and $2,500 made to Robert P. Brindell, indicted head of the Building Trades Council, Mr. Tench said:

"I objected very strongly at first, but after considering the matter—we were just starting the contract—we thought it was a much better thing to have Brindell with us than against us. We thought it would be more expensive if we went into a labor fight, just starting, than if we paid him this money and prevented a strike."

Mr. Tench added Brindell himself had fixed the amount of the payments and demanded cash in advance. The item was charged to general expense.

Charles B. J. Snyder, superintendent of school buildings for the Board of Education, was the next witness. He explained the estimate made December 1st, with respect to his school building contracts. About twenty-five contractors bid on school work. He testified, and two of these, the T. A. Clark Company and the James MacArthur Company, bid on almost every contract.

Mr. Snyder testified that the city estimates the cost of school buildings before bids are asked, and now the war, he said, these estimates usually coincided with the contract price; now they are almost always below. Queens High School was taken as an instance. The original estimate made December 1st, was $225,967; in April, 1916, it was increased to $299,137, and the final estimate July, 1919, was $300,000. The contract was awarded for $366,700 in May, 1920.

Thomas A. Clark, president of the T. A. Clark Company, testified he never attempted to find out what other contractors were bidding on jobs his company was bidding on.

"We always know who is going to bid on a school contract when we get the plans from the Board of Education," he said.

He is not a member of any building or trade association, the witness said, and his bids are never submitted to anyone else. The Clark company, which has contracts for five schools, now in process of construction, does about 60 or 70 per cent. of the work itself and sublets the remainder.

Mr. Clark had never heard of Brindell or John T. Estimate, the contractor, "code of practice" lawyer, until he had read their names in the newspaper accounts of the Lockwood investigation, he said. He did know about the code of practice, the limestone and cut stone business, however.

His superintendent added $20,000 to a certain school bid to get it turned down after discovering that all the other contractors had gone "on strike" and did not intend to bid at all. Mr. Clark testified. Mr. Carwell asked how he knew the others were acting in concert.

"Haywood, my superintendent, told me," said the witness. "I don't know how he found it out. You had better call him."

The reason he did not submit a real bid was fear of disclosing his figures to his competitors. If new bids were called for, Mr. Clark said, when only one bid is received the city ordinarily rejects it.

English Water Colors

In close gilt frames. $20 to $150

These water colors by English artists, which we have recently received, have a charm and a decorative quality which is quite unique. The traditional riotous color and quiet seclusion of the English garden and cottage is recreated in these water colors.

—flowers in full bloom,
—hatched cottages,
—quiet roads,
—bright splashes of color,
—framed close, in the English fashion, to accentuate their quality.

The artists represented in this collection are Kurihara, of Japanese strain, who uses rich, saturated colors in his studies of bridges, quite a contrast to the fresh coloring of the other artists—Hunn, Noel-Smith, Hazel, Hurst, Howitt, Rossiter, Matthews, Quinton, Donald.

Mr. Bright-Eyed, Bushy-tailed, Soft-coated Gray Squirrel sits high up in his leafless tower, laughing at the last robins as they take leave of their old haunts among the forest trees to make their long flight southward.

During the Summer, the squirrel frisks and frolics within the foliage of the woods safe from forbidden gunners. When Winter comes he hides and sleeps in his snug storage house of food in the hollow of the tree, where he has a goodly store of nuts and grains to last him until the snow and cold have gone.

But, Mr. Squirrel is a selfish old thing who does not care to share his good things, not even at holiday times.
